THE FAMILY DOCTOR.

NATURE'S ANÆSTHETIC. — I was attacked with a severe dental neuralgia. After resorting to friction, cold and hot applications, etc., without obtaining any relief, I lay upon my bed trusting that sleep might come and give me respite. Still the excruciating pain continued, and while I was suffering the "tortures of the doubly damned," undecided whether to arouse some tired druggist for a bottle of chloroform or chop my head off (with a decided preference, however, for the chloroform), I suddenly bethought me of what I had read on an anæsthetic which we always carry with us. Thereupon I began to inflate my lungs to their utmost capacity, and then forcibly blow out all the air I could. Immediately the pain began to lessen, and after a few repetitions of the process it had entirely ceased, being displaced by a delightful tickling sensation in the gums, and furthermore I know not, for in less time than it takes to tell it I was sound asleep, awakening next morning delightfully refreshed and without a symptom of my silment left. Hence, you see, I was not simply temporarily relieved, but entirely well again. I wish other sufferers would try this and report results. - A. Forst, in Louisville Medical

THE CARE OF BABIES.

Dr. Foote's Health Monthly (New York) commends the following thirteen rules—issued under the auspices of the French Academy of Medicine-for the care of infants:

1. During the first year the only suitable nourishment for an infant is its own mother's milk, or that of a healthy wetnurse. Suckling should be repeated every two hours—less frequently at night.

2. When it is impossible to give breast milk, either from the mother or a suitable nurse, cow's or goat's milk given tepid, reduced at first one-half by the addition of water slightly sweetened, and after a few weeks one-fourth only, is the next-best substitute.

3, Iu giving milk to an infant always use glass or earthenware vessels, not metallic ones, and always observe the most scrupulous cleanliness in their management, rinsing whenever used. Always avoid the use of teats of cloth or sponge, so frequently applied to appease hunger or quiet crying.

4. Never forget that artificial nourishment, whether by nursing bottle cr spoon (without the breast), increases to an alarming degree the chances of producing sickness and death.

5. It is always dangerous to give an infant, especially during the first two months of its life, solid food of any kind—such as bread, cakes, meats, vegetable or fruit.

6. Only after the seventh month, and when the mother's milk is not sufficient to nourish the child, should broths be allowed. After the first year is ended then it is appropriate to give broth or paps made with milk and bread, dried flour, rice, and the farinaceous articles, to prepare for weaning. A child ought not to be weaned until it has cut its first twelve or thirteen teeth, and then only when in perfect health.

7. A child should be washed and dressed every morning, before being nursed or fed. In bathing a child, temper the water to the weather, carefully cleanse the body, and especially the genital organs, which require great cleanliness and care; and the head should be carefully freed from all scabs and crusts which may form. Where the belly-band is used, it should be kept on for at least

8. An infant's clothing should always be so arranged as to wave the limbs freedom of motion, and not to compress any portion of the body.

9. An infant's clothing should always be studiously adapted to the weather, avoiding at all times exposure to the injurious effects of sudden changes in temperature without proper covering; but nurseries and sleeping apartment should invariably be well ventilated.

10. An infant should not be taken into the open air before the fifteenth day after birth, and then only in mild, fair

11. It is objectionable to have an infant'sleep in the same bed either with its mother or nurse.

12. No mother should be in too great a hurry to have a child walk; let it crawl and accustom itself to rising on its feet by climbing on articles of furni-ture, or assisted by the arms of a care-ful attendent. Great care should be taken in the too-early use of baby wag-

13. In cases of suspected pregnancy, either of mother or nurse, the child should be weaned at once.

The Lady and Her Pocket.

Perhaps it is in a sort of protest of feminine will against masculine absurdity that every woman refuses to accept man's view of the usefulness of the pocket. The practice of our grand-mothers was to have one huge and clumsy pocket, which was in the shape of a bag and would hold a peck or more of miscellany. This was hung by a string around the waist. It took its general position somewhere among the inner drapery and was reached by an opening in the outer skirt. In many cases it became a storage warehouse for lost property, such as spectacles, knitting-needles and scissors. It was so clumsy that it went out of fashion, except among shop-lifters, who built their receptacles for stolen goods after its model, only on a somewhat larger scale. The reaction from the peck-measure pocket was so great as almost to abolish the use of pockets among ladies. At the present time there are myriads of women who have no pockets worthy of the name and who are content to leave their watches and money exposed to the cupidity and rapacity of thieves. It would seem that with the ingenuity which has been spent on the decorative features of feminine apparel some thought might have been given to the construction of safety pockets for watches and portemonnaies. But, except in rare instances, this has not been done, and does not seem likely to be. Most ladies are content to stuff their watches in their belts or in some fold of the dress, trusting to luck for exemption from thieves. It is a curious study of human nature to watch an army of women on parade through the streets with a view to shopping. The dear creatures generally carry their pocketbooks or purses in their hands, and frequently hold them up conspicuously to view. A more cordial invitation to the thief and the pocket-book-snatcher could not be given than is thus generously afforded. A thief who would not avail himself of such an opportunity as this affords is hardly worthy the name of thief. It seems almost unreasonable to blame a poor fellow for helping himself to what is thus held out before him.

The display of portable property in this way is on a par with the exhibition of costly diamonds pendent from the ears while on the street or elsewhere in a throng. It is difficult to wring out tears of sympathy for women who are robbed of the valuables with which they thus tempt the thieves. The best that can be hoped for them is that the lessons they may learn by such experience will be of advantage in making them more careful and in leading them to adopt reasonable precautions against loss and theft .- Philadelphia Times.

One one of the most valuable of recent publications is "American Politics," by Hon. Thomas V. Cooper, published by Charles R. Brodix, Lakeside Building, Chicage, Ill. It is in seven books (all in one volume), and embraces a history of political parties from beginning to date; political platforms, great speeches, politieal laws, laws of nations, a complete blue book, financial history, &c. It is admirably arranged, and is valuable either for ready reference or study. It brings into compact shape the material points of considerable library, and politicians who may see it will hardly feel able to do without it. Mr. Wm. Newell is the agent for the book in this eity.

The men who tell the workingmen that they will starve under a tariff for revenue only known that the statement is not true, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Those men only want the system retained which gives them big bounties and fattens the leeches. They want to keep up a system | ted. which makes their fellow-citizens pay taxes to them; which perpetuates a privileged class and class legislation; which makes cold blooded monopolies and serfs of the men who work for them. A system which limits exports, limits imports, limits commerce, strengthens monopoly, increases taxation of the many for the benefit of the few, and preyents the country from realizing the full benefits arising from a natural division of labor, ought to go. It is an unrepublican system.

Perseverance Will Tell

STROUGHTON, MASS., March 16, 1880. B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:-In justice to you and myself, I think I ought to let you know that I have removed two bone spavins with 'Kendall's Spavin Cure,' one very large one, don't know how long the spavin had been there. I have owned the horse eight months. It took me four months to take the large one off and two for the small one. I have used ten bottles. The horse is entirely well, not at all stiff, and no bunch to be seen or felt. This is a wonderful medicine. It is a new thing here, but if it does for all what it has done for me its will be very great.

Respectfully yours, Chas. E. Parker.

It is intended to be one of the most interesting of the season, and the arrangements have been made with that end in view. There will be good music, dancing and all kinds of refreshments. Everybody is invited. See advertisement.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Church of Washington, will give an ice-cream supper for the benefit of the Church next Wednesday night instead Thursday as first spoken of. As it is a worthy object we hope the supper will be well patronized and assure all that they will receive full worth of their money. A delicious supper as well as ice-cream will be served.

MRS. RICHARD LINDSEY, an old and much respected citizen of the Lewisburg precinct, died on Saturday last. The remains were laid to rest at the Maysville cemetery yesterday, attended by a large concourse of friends. Mr. Jesse D. Johnson, another well-known and useful citizen, died on Sunday at the age of seventyseven years. The funeral will take place from the residence this afternoon.

A Pleasant Event.

MAYSVILLE, KY., July 3, 1882. Editor Bulletin: I write with pleasure of a little affair that took place on Saturday at the home of Mrs. Lewis Paul in the West End of this city. It being her fortyfirst birthday, the family and other friends concluded to give her an agreeable surprise. They gathered up stairs while she was dressing for breakfast and profoundly ignorant of what was in store for her. While she was thus occupied one of the young ladies went down stairs and summoning Mrs. Paul into the parlor, gave this afternoon at four o'clock, in the jail entire mass was photographed, but not her a present and while she was admiring where he was executed, and within a few very successfully. The intention is now it, went to the piano and struck up a lively march. The family and friends his crime. The burial was an informal amination of the brain as is possible. As then marched in procession down stairs, each bearing a token of love and regard, Mrs. Scoville, Attorney Reed. Bertha, the plete the report will be prepared. May her future be as To-Morrow being the Fourth of July, a bright as the past and may her family always thus honor her. #### Ferry Landing and Privileges Sold.

The lower ferry landing at Aberdeen and the privileges attached thereto were offered at public sale on Saturday and bought by Capt. James Power for $1,160. The property sold is the river front begining at the mouth of Fishing Gut Creek and extending to a point on the shore near the middle landing. This purchase gives Capt. Power the entire river front from the creek named to the upper grade. He also bought at the same time town lot No. 143, for $575 and lot No. 153 for $305.

The brain will undergo a very critical examination, and the next feature of the Dr. H. C Morgan returned Saturday disgusting business will be a quarrel among the doctors. The official report of the autopsy will hardly be made public for a week yet.

THE RESULT OF THE AUTOPSY,

So far as concluded, shows nothing abnormal except the spleen, which was considerably enlarged, weighing fifteen ounces, which is twice the usual size. The lungs and heart were normal, though there was a slight roughening of the aorto. The brain, so far as examined, presented no evidence of disease.

The weight was forty-nine and a half ounces, which is slightly above the average. The physicians found that the neck was neither dislocated nor fractured, but there was a rupture of the sterno clido mastoid muscle on both sides, and a rupture of the thyro hyoid membrane. #### THAT POISONED BOUDGET.

The following is printed here, but is 'ndifferently sustained: A Critic reporter called upon Dr. McWilliams this morning at his office, and inquired what disposition had been made of the suspicious bouquet sent to Gniteau's cell by his sister on the evening before the execution. Dr. Me-Williams stated that when the bouquet was given to him by General Crocker he posed. #### HEALTH INTELLIGENCE.

[From Dr. Foote's Health Monthly.]

Among forty-seven thousand dogs taken to the pound of New York City during five years past, only one was found to have hydrophobia.

A FOND mother wrote to an enthusiastic young lady who had established a physiology class for girl: "Please do not teach my Mary Ann any more about her insides. It will never do her no good, and it's rude."

If we were provided with a sense of smell as acute as many animals, possess, it would probably he a great aid in diagnosis, for there are some diseases that are accompanied by a definite odor, and possibly all are, to some extent, Professor Lewis, of Stevens Institute, has made four hundred analyses of food and drugs, and found that in all cases of adulteration, excepting one, no poisonous material was employed. In one specimen of pickles copper was found.

Dr. Hewlitt, of Lake Superior, believes that diphtheria was brought into his family by the house cat. It died of some affection of the throat and glands of the neak, and violent diphtheria then attacked two of his children and caused their death.

Numers should be used sparingly, for they possess a narcotic property that constitutes them a drug. A lady who was induced to take nutning tea by her nurse was made drowsy by it and finally put into a profound stuper resembling that of opium:

Dr. Emmer recommends the fat pork, properly prepared, as an excellent substitute for cod-liver oil. We should ourselves prefer the cod-liver oil, but, when they can be digested, flaxseeds carried in the pocket and eaten raw afford a large amount of fatty substance.

A suggestion for hoarseness worthy of trial is the use of common horse-raddish prepared in sugar—one part, to nine parts of sugar. A little of this mixture in the month, swallowed slowly, gives relief. The remedy (horse-raddish) is not a new one, but, to us, the sugar way of using it seems to be a new and Indispensible to Merchants Shippers good one.

Sketch of Gambetta Out of Power.

Coming from the Chamber I saw M. Gambetta on the bridge opposite the Palais Bourbon, urging his portly person against a wind which churned the Seine into a whirpool, and made most pedestrians clutch their hats despairingly. The great man has grown old with almost alarming rapidity, but not since his fall. On the contrary, it is only from the moment of his departure from power that his eyes have brightened and his step has grown comparatively light. His face is flushed, and his eyes are sunken, not as a reliable informant who was with me when he passed told me, because of dissipation, but because of overwork. Never man toiled as Gambetta toiled for twelve or fourteen weeks previous to his resignation. His doctor gave him the choice to die or to stop work, and before he was compelled to admit publicly that his physical energies were flagging came the political crisis which gave him repose. He went down to the Chamber on the day that I saw him with the air of a man who still had an important place there, and I observed that hats were doffed on all sides as he went along. Wicked De Blowitz, the Paris correspondent of the London Times, says that Gambetta still keeps the tri-colored cockade, which belongs to the Prime Minister's equipage, upon his coachman's hat, which if true, might be considered as an indication of great expectations. Gambetta is more frequently seen in public—at the theater, in society—now that the strain of his labor is relaxed. He is now visible in a box at the Francois, now heard of at a dinner party where the company is brilliant and gay. "He is not a man of the world," once said General Galliffet of him; "he can not boast of tenue, but he can say a neat thing; from his corner of a sofa after dinner he sometimes sends forth a flight of witty and caustic sayings, sure to be long remembered. Every one who has heard him in the tribune knows what a remarkable faculty he possesses for crushing an adversary with a sharp retort, which stings for many days .- Paris Correspondence.
